JOIN US TO ADVANCE NEC RESEARCH WORLDWIDE

The NEC Symposium is the world's largest and most influential NEC-focused meeting. We bring together leaders from around the globe to advance innovative research and quality care.

Since 2017, the NEC Symposium has been a pivotal platform for uniting diverse experts, advocates, industry, and non-profits. Together, we are moving closer to our vision of a world without NEC.

The NEC Symposium in Chicago is presented by the NEC Society, Cincinnati Children's, and UNC Children's.

The NEC Society is the world's leading nonprofit organization focused on necrotizing enterocolitis (NEC). Our mission is clear: to build a world without NEC by advancing research, education, and advocacy. We are led by a global community of patient-families, clinicians, and scientists. Together, we are improving the understanding, prevention, and treatment of NEC and transforming what is possible for infants and families.

HOSPITALS FOR A WORLD WITHOUT NEC

The NEC Society proudly presents the NEC Symposium in partnership with Cincinnati Children's and UNC Health Children's. Uniting hospitals, clinicians, and patient-families committed to improving care and outcomes for infants affected by NEC is essential to preventing this devastating disease. We invite you to stand with us and demonstrate your dedication to advancing research that will make a difference.
